

To put a broadcast flag on transmissions will seriously limit individuals rights. Yes, the MPAA and RIAA have valid arguments on copyright infringement, but these arguments must not override our rights as individuals. A ruling like this could make billions of dollars of equipment illegal. It could also raise prices of consumer electronics that some may argue all too high now. These prices are already increasing due to federal legislation like HDTV. Please stop this non-sense and have the MPAA and RIAA find better solutions to combat copyright infringement.
